FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

The "Fighting Third Army" Now Trains Fighters

BY LT. GEN. A. B. BOLLING
Commanding General, Third Army

PROBABLY no American Army since the Army of the Potomac is as well-known to the general public as "The Famous Third Army." In sweeps across Europe, under its fabled commander, General George S. Patton, it set a pattern for American victory.

Lt. Gen. Bolling

Among my major tasks, as Commanding General, Third Army, I must endeavor to maintain the standards set by former leaders such as General George S. Patton, jr., Lt. Gen. Alvan C. Gillem, jr., and General John R. Hodge; and to instill the same pride in unit, service and country and the will to win that was apparent in the men who made history during World War II.

Today the thoughts of personnel of Third Army are with another famous Army, the Eighth, in Korea. Since we cannot be with them, we are doing the next most important job of furnishing trained officers and men for the active Army and training members of the Civilian Components who might make up an equally famous Third Army in the event of a future all-out emergency.

To give the reader some idea of the Third Army's mission, its location, size, and economic importance to local areas, I will summarize some facts which are descriptive and will be informative to those who look upon us.

The Camp Areas consist of approximately 1,700,000 acres in the States of Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee. In addition, Fort Campbell, which is astride the Tennessee-Kentucky border, was recently assigned to Third Army.

All Airborne Infantry training within the Continental limits of the United States is in Third Army. The XVIII Airborne Corps has headquarters at Ft. Bragg, the 82d Airborne Division at Ft. Bragg, the 11th Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, and the 508th Airborne Infantry Regiment and the Airborne School are at Ft. Benning.

Ft. Benning is one of the best known installations in Third Army Area because of the world-renowned Infantry Center. Nearly 50,000 officers and men have graduated from schools at The Infantry Center during the past four years. Airborne

AF OUTLOOK BRIGHTENS

The Air Force personnel picture brightened this week as boards which either had already begun or were set to start the task of picking 4000 additional officers for forced separation were themselves "deactivated." The Air Force had notified about 6500 officers of forthcoming involuntary separation and was set to increase the total beyond 10,000. But, as reported last week, last-minute authority was given by the Defense Department for a total officer strength of 134,000 instead of 130,000. Hence, the boards were no longer needed. The Air Force states that officers who haven't already received "RIF" notices are in the clear.

The additional 4000 officers may create an opportunity for unanticipated promotions in FY '54. Officials say it's still too early to spell out the prospects.

Army Officers To Get "RIF" Notices 1 Nov.

Hundreds of non-regular Army officers will receive notification on or about 1 Nov. that they have been "rified"—selected for involuntary separation from active duty. They will be the first of an estimated 6000-8000 Army officers who will be forced off active duty because of the new budgetary manpower ceilings.

The Army will give these officers 90 days notice before separation.

Eight boards are now working over records at the Pentagon nominating officers considered likely choices for the USMC DIR. of Aviation Promoted To Lt. Gen.

The Assistant Commandant of the Marine Corps for Air, Maj. Gen. William O. Brice was promoted this week to Lieutenant General.

The action, previously predicted in THE JOURNAL followed Presidential approval of a fifth three-star billet for the Marine Corps.

General Brice received his new stars in a ceremony in the office of General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., on 9 Sept. He has been Assistant CMC for Air and Director of Marine Aviation since 1 April 1952. He will be 55 in December.

A graduate of the Citadel, General Brice was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps in 1921 and was designated a Naval Aviator three years later. During WWII, he commanded all Search, Bombing and Torpedo Aircraft at Guadalcanal in the first United States offensive of the Pacific War and later was Commanding Officer, Fighter Command, for the Commander, Aircraft, Solomon Islands Area.

Immediately prior to his present assignment, General Brice served as Deputy Commander of Fleet Marine Forces, Pacific. He is the second aviator in Marine history to hold three-star rank.

May Boost '54 Draft Calls, Cut '55 Quotas

The Defense Department must reach a decision in the next few weeks as to whether or not it wants to take the humps and bumps out of the manpower picture for fiscal years 1954 and 1955.

The Air Force already has taken action on its own to help smooth its manpower problems, but the Army is unable to act until top-level decisions are made at the Pentagon. This is because Army manpower plans must be tied to the size of draft calls.

The Navy personnel situation is relatively more stable than the other Services. The Marine Corps is not confronted with a serious "hump" problem, but may experience a pinch in the months ahead meeting overseas replacement requirements.

Assistant Defense Secretary John A. Hannah, just back from the Far East, reportedly is sympathetic to a plan which would mean raised draft calls during the last six months of fiscal year 1954 (the first six months of calendar 1954), but which later would permit a reduction in projected draft calls for fiscal 1955 beginning next July.

Tentative plans call for the Army to draft about 23,000 men each month throughout fiscal year 1954. It's estimated that this figure may go to 40,000 or 45,000 for some months in fiscal 1955 when the odd-year separations increase.

Some Pentagon authorities maintain that by stabilizing draft calls at about 35,000 per month, the high and low manpower spots can be eliminated. This, they say, would save money in the long run by preventing forced crank-ups and run-downs of the training establishment and would permit more effective utilization of men, thereby boosting combat effectiveness, particularly of divisions in the United States.

The Air Force, anticipating a tremendous loss of airmen in fiscal 1955, has taken action to permit thousands of its enlisted personnel scheduled for separation then to get out now. Their replacements would be men who enlist for four to six years.

As Assistant Secretary for manpower and personnel, Dr. Hannah reportedly has given serious and favorable study to the possibility of smoothing out the

"Thunderbirds" Feature AF Aerial Display at National Aircraft Show

Precision formation maneuvers used by fighter pilots in combat were seen by spectators at the National Aircraft Show, Dayton, Ohio, over Labor Day week-end when five crack pilots of the Air Force's new precision formation flying team, the Thunderbirds, put their Republic F-84's through their paces.

The precision demonstration, lasting approximately 15 minutes, started with a take-off entry into a diamond formation as the four silver, red, white and blue USAF F-84's leap off the runway. Their maneuvers progressed from a diamond formation through rolls, loops and clover leaf turns to a grand finale of the "bomb burst."

Stationed at Luke AFB, Glendale, Ariz., the Thunderbirds are instructors in Luke's fighter combat crew training program as a part of the Crew Training Air Force. The team was activated 1 June 1953.

Maj. Catledge "Lead Man"

Flying the lead position in the team, and the man who plans all the maneuvers, is Maj. Richard C. Catledge, who flew 23 missions from North Africa during World War II before being shot down and taken prisoner.

In the wing positions are the "hard-to-tell-apart" twins, Captains C. A. "Bill" and C. C. "Buck" Pattillo. Both were members of the "Skyblazers" precision team in Germany from 1949 to 1952. Both flew F-51 Mustangs in World War II, where "Bill" was shot down over Germany and taken prisoner.

Slot position on the team is flown by Capt. Robert L. Kanaga, who tallied up 93 missions in the F-51 and 12 in the Lockheed F-80 Shooting Star in Korea.

Alternate on the team to fill any of the positions is Capt. Robert S. McCormick, who formerly flew the right wing position in the Sabre Dancers, an F-86 demonstration team. Captain McCormick has chalked up 100 missions in Korea where he flew a North American F-86.

Hour-Long Demonstration

An hour long demonstration of aerial might designed to present the capabilities and potentialities of the Air Force was a daily part of the Show.

In addition to the aerial demonstrations 17 operational aircraft were assembled in a static exhibit to commemorate the Golden Anniversary of Powered Flight.

Three Republic F-84 Thunderjets, fully equipped with long range tanks and dummy bombs and rockets demonstrated a jet assisted take-off.

Show Cargo Planes

Three Fairchild C-119 Flying Boxcars and three Douglas C-124 Globemaster II cargo aircraft performed a resupply parachute mission. Simultaneously, a World War II Douglas C-47 Sky Train and a huge C-124, modern day counterpart, taxied in front of the spectators and unloaded fully equipped combat troops. Purpose of the demonstration was to indicate the tremendous strides that the Air Force has made in increasing payload of cargo craft. The C-47 will carry 27 troops and the C-124, 205.

Eight North American F-86's armed as fighter-bombers for close ground support as part of their Tactical Air Command mission, then performed a fly-by.

Three F-86's and three Northrup F-89 Scorpions followed the TAC planes in a fly-by and capped their performance with an after-burner climb.

A B-47 Stratojet then performed a JATO take-off and returned for a drag-chute landing.

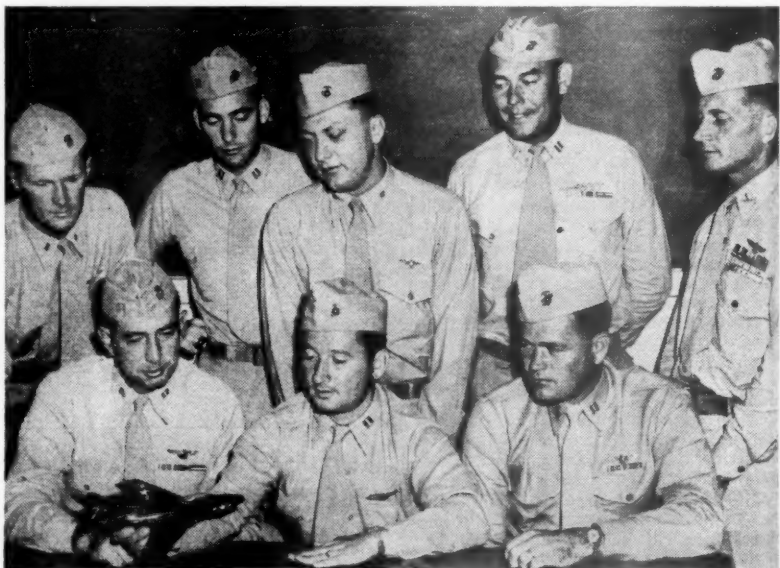

Six giant bombers of the Stratojet Air Command followed with a formation fly-by accompanied by 12 F-84 Thunderjets as bomber escort. On the opening and closing days of the show, B-47's were utilized and on Sunday Convair B-36 intercontinental bombers performed in this fly-by.

Martin B-57 and XB-51

A Martin B-57 Canberra, holder of the east to west Atlantic crossing speed record, followed the giant atom bomb equipped bombers in a fly-by, and it in turn by a fly-by by top research aircraft featuring the latest designs.

One of the features was a fly-by by the Martin XB-51 experimental bomber. The plane was flown by Lt. Col. Frank K. Everest, jr., Chief of Flight Test Operations Laboratory at the Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Calif.

Lt. Col. Jack D. Ridley and Maj. Charles E. Yeager, first man to exceed the speed of sound, piloted a B-29 Superfortress which served as "mother" plane for the supersonic Bell X-1B which was placed on static display at the Show.

CARRIER QUALIFIED—Although the Marine flight-pilots shown above have a total of 77 years' flying experience in military aircraft, all of them have just completed carrier landing qualifications aboard the USS Yorktown. They are members of the "Death Angels" jet fighter-bomber squadron of Marine Air Group 13, which has been undergoing training at Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, Hawaii, as a part of the aviation element of the 1st Provisional Marine Air-Ground Task Force, Fleet Marine Force. Left to right (standing) are: 1st Lt. Richmond Flatland, Capt. Robert Dobbins, Jr., Maj. Curtis E. Knudson, Capt. Whitall F. Bonner, Jr., and Capt. Robert Klingman. Seated, as they inspect a model of the F9F "Panther" jet which each of the novices successfully landed on the carrier deck the required times for qualification are (from left): Capt. George B. Coddington, Capt. Richard Hilebrand and Capt. Lauren C. Holland.

Army Takes Big Part In National Air Show

Reflecting the ground forces increasing use of its own integral aircraft, the Army this year took a major part in the National Aircraft Show at Dayton, Ohio, over Labor Day week end. The show was an event of the Fiftieth Anniversary of Powered Flight.

Twenty-three Army planes, including eight helicopters flew from Ft. Sill, Okla., to take part. They were under command of Lt. Col. Theodore F. Schirmacher. Fourteen Army troop carrying helicopters under command of Maj. William G. Kilmer flew from Ft. Benning, Ga.

Also a transport plane from Benning airlifted four 75-mm pack howitzers and their artillerymen to Dayton. Two other transports took two WAC control tower operations, 40 soldiers, and a large assortment of demonstration equipment from Sill to Dayton.

'Copter Airlift

The Army attracted wide attention by providing newsmen covering the air show with helicopter transportation from a "Postage Stamp" airfield in downtown Dayton to the press tent at Dayton Municipal Airport ten miles away. Participating in the airlift were the 506th Helicopter Transportation company from Ft. Benning under command of Major Kilmer and a group from the aviation school at Ft. Sill under command of Lt. Col. Robert M. Hamilton.

Among the helicopter pilots participating was Capt. William P. Brake, USA, instructor at Ft. Sill, who flew 587 missions to evacuate a record 800 wounded soldiers from the combat zone in Korea. Captain Brake picked up 415 wounded soldiers within 250 to 300 yards of enemy positions and flew them to forward Mobile Army Surgical Hospitals.

W/O Jerry J. Foster, a member of the staff at the Army Aviation Training Center, Ft. Sill, attracted considerable attention when, each day of the show, he took an H-13 up to 1,000 feet and deliberately cut off the engine, making a safe landing with no power.

W/O John S. Hickey showed the crowds he could bring his 'copter to a dead stop from 60 miles per hour much faster than an automobile could come to a halt.

"Little Peachy Atom Shell"

The Army staged a mock "atomic" burst with 'copters rushing troops in afterwards to hold the position. The simulated atomic weapon was developed at the Army Chemical Corps School, Ft. McClellan, Ala. It gave a bright flash, an ear-splitting explosion, and even a white-capped doughnut-shaped cloud. This demonstration was conducted by Maj. David D. McCorvey, CmlC, of the Chemical Corps School, who worked out the formula. The "Little Peachy Atom Shell" was composed of 100 lbs. of white phosphorous, 1,760 lbs. petroleum compound, 500 feet primer cord, 30 lbs. TNT and five lbs. C3.

During the show the 180th Anti-aircraft Artillery Battalion, Ohio National Guard, under command of Maj. Richard K. Hill set up the airfield and trained its fire direction equipment and guns on the Air Force and Navy jets taking part in the show.

Army pilots taking part included Capt. Harold G. Waddell, who flew General Eisenhower and General Mark Clark in Italy and Austria; Capt. Robert N. Duffy, Capt. Richard L. Dowden, and Capt. Isidro S. Valdez, all of whom have been decorated for their aviation accomplishments.

A major attraction in the area set aside for static exhibits was that conducted by the Quartermaster Corps illustrating their airdrop activities. Light artillery pieces, jeeps, and other weapons were shown on pallets prepared for air drops. The big parachutes used in heavy drops were displayed along with other gear.

The exhibit was in charge of Lt. Col. John D. McLaughlin, Chief of the Training Branch, office of the Quartermaster General. He was assisted in the conduct of the show by Capt. Alexander Soroka and Capt. Cecil Hospelhorn, both of the Quartermaster School Airborne Group of Ft. Lee, Va., where the exhibit was prepared.

Gen. Riley FOA Deputy

Lt. Gen. William E. Riley, USMC-Ret., was named this week to be Deputy Director of the Foreign Operations Administration.

The former Chief of Staff of the UN Truce Supervision Organization in Palestine will serve under FOA Director Harold E. Stassen.

Lt. Gen. Riley

General Riley entered the Marine Corps as a second lieutenant in 1917 and saw action in both World Wars. During WWI, he took part in the defense of the Verdun Sector, and the Aisne-Marne Defensive and Offensive, winning the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster and the Croix de Guerre with Gold Star.

In WWII, he commanded the Third Defense Battalion at Guadalcanal and was in charge of planning for the Empress Augusta Bay (Bougainville) and the Palau operations. He also helped to plan the invasion of Japan. He was selected for promotion to two-star rank in January 1950 and was promoted to his present rank upon retirement.

Gen. Dean's Assignment

As THE JOURNAL went to press, the Pentagon had yet to make any announcement concerning a new assignment for Maj. Gen. William F. Dean, former CG of the 24th Infantry Division in Korea and Medal of Honor winner.

Maj. Gen. Dean

General Dean, now recuperating from the effects of his long internment by the Communists, probably will not receive a new post until after he has conferred with top Army officials in Washington and after an extended leave.

There is, of course, the possibility that he will be retired for physical disability as a result of his imprisonment. Since General Dean has made his home in the San Francisco Bay Area, where his wife remained while he was a prisoner, there is some speculation that if he remains on active duty he will receive a West Coast billet—possibly with the Sixth Army.

Army Offers To Release Doctors To Navy and AF

The Army plans to allow a number of its newly-commissioned physicians to accept commissions in either the Navy or Air Force to ward off a threatened shortage of doctors in those Services, it was announced this week.

However, if this interservice transfer plan fails to attract a sufficient number of volunteers, it may be necessary to detail Army physicians to duty where their services are more urgently needed.

Meanwhile, no further draft calls for doctors will be made and no more volunteer medical officers accepted for duty in any Service for the time being.

The Department of Defense listed several reasons for the current surplus of physicians in the Army. In addition to a high volunteer rate following the extension for two years of the Doctor Draft Act and the announcement of the August draft call, many doctors now eligible for release from Service are remaining in uniform.

Furthermore, the Defense Department said there has been a sharp decrease in the number of physicians granted deferments for additional professional training.

Adm. Carney Deplores 'Picking Away' at Careers

Admiral Robert B. Carney warned this week that the quality of the Armed Forces will deteriorate if the constant "pecking away" at career attractions is not stemmed.

Speaking at the recommissioning of the USS Hornet at the New York Naval Shipyard on 11 Sept., the Chief of Naval Operations said the American people "are unconsciously diluting morale in their armed forces today."

"They are pecking away at things which are needed to attract and hold the type of men that they themselves want manning our defenses. As shrewd as they are in trade, the American people do not seem to see that they will surely get bargain quality if they are only willing to pay bargain prices."

Admiral Carney noted that the public has heard this problem before "and will hear it again." He said, "It must be kept before them because if the present trend is not stemmed, the quality of the Armed Forces will deteriorate."

The CNO said, "It is to be devoutly hoped that our people will give us a hand in this matter. But in the meantime we of the Armed Forces have a job to do, and bemoaning our luck will not get it done. Our task is to perfect ourselves in fighting techniques, condition ourselves to serve and emulate the valiant Americans of other days. The achievement of those goals always brings a sense of self-respect and rightful pride which in themselves constitute a rich reward."

Maj. Whisner, ATRC, Wins Bendix Trophy Race; All Ten Entrants Better Last Record

Maj. William T. Whisner, jr., USAF, commanding officer of the 3596 Flying Training Squadron, Nellis AFB, Nev., won the Bendix Trophy race 5 Sept. with an average speed of 603.547 miles per hour.

The race was run from Edwards AFB, Calif., to Dayton, Ohio, the finish being an event of the National Aircraft show held there in celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of Powered Flight.

Maj. Edward R. Johnston, of the Air Proving Ground, came in second.

Ten North American F86-F Sabre Jets powered by General Electric J-47 engines, participated—two each from the Air Defense Command, Air Proving Ground Command, Air Research and Development Command, Air Training Command, and Air Technical Command.

First and third places were taken by the Air Training Command, Col. Clay Tice, jr., commanding officer of the 3595 Flying Training Squadron, of Nellis AFB, coming in third. Lt. Gen. Robert M. Harper, ATRC Commanding General, was at the finish to meet the winners.

All ten participants finished and all exceeded previous Bendix race records. Capt. James S. Carson, of Edwards AFB, Calif., reported he was out of fuel at about 100 miles before the end of the race, but he was given permission to glide across the finish line. Even his time of 577.32 mph. exceeded the previous record set by Col. Keith K. Compton in 1951, also in a North American F-86.

Refueling stops were at the discretion of each pilot. Major Whisner stopped at Forbes AFB, Kans., took on gasoline, oil, and oxygen in less than a minute and a half with the assistance of a well trained crew. He finished the race with 10 gallons of fuel left. Major Whisner said he flew by dead reckoning at 40,000 feet for most of the course.

Results of the race were as follows:

UNITED STATES ARMY

Army To Run Airborne Exercises Nov. To June

An extensive field exercise designed primarily to evaluate airborne combat techniques and to provide practical field training for participating units will be conducted by the Army in the Ft. Bragg, N. C., and Ft. Campbell, Ky., areas from November to next June.

The maneuvers, which will be called Skydrop 1 and are planned as a sequel to Exercise Test Drop, also will consider offensive and defensive aspects of atomic weapons operations.

The operations will consist of a series of separate but inter-related problems concerning establishment of an airhead, joint aspects of airhead operations, and continued development of heavy-equipment drop techniques.

Although designed to include planning factors for division and corps-scale operations, the exercise also will be carried out in part on a regimental team level. Participating units will consist of those groups assigned or attached to the XVIII Airborne Corps, which includes the 82d and 11th Airborne Divisions.

Lt. Gen. John E. Dahlquist, Chief of the Army Field Forces, has named Maj. Gen. Joseph P. Cleland, commanding general of the XVIII Airborne Corps, as maneuver director.

Wins Medal of Honor

The Army has announced the Medal of Honor has been awarded 1st Lt. James L. Stone, who was repatriated 2 Sept. after almost two years in a Communist prison camp.

Announcement of the award was withheld by the Army during the nearly two years Lieutenant Stone was a POW for fear the Reds would take reprisals against him.

The medal, the 63d awarded by the Army since the Korean war began, was presented to Lieutenant Stone for his heroism while directing a platoon attack against the enemy in November 1951. Although wounded, the 30-year-old officer continued to direct his platoon, which suffered 100 per cent casualties in its defensive action, inflicting heavy losses on the enemy and preventing them from consolidating their objective.

"Report to Taxpayers"

Is Theme of Navy Show

Thrilling performances by the "Blue Angels," precision jet flying team from the Naval Air Advanced Training Command, Corpus Christi, Tex., featured the Navy's participation in the National Aircraft Show at Dayton, Ohio, over the weekend.

Flying F9F-5 "Panthers," the team, headed by Lt. Comdr. Arthur Ray Hawkins, kept the crowds on edge as they traced patterns in the sky.

Also shown were the radio-controlled "drone" predecessor of the Navy's newest guided missile, the "Regulus," and the technique of air-to-air refueling. Two flybys of new planes, including the Cutlass, Banshee, and Fury were also held.

The Navy's project control was coordinated by the Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training, Glenview, Ill. Equipment came from the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., the Chief of Naval Air Advanced Training, Corpus Christi, Tex., COMAIRLANT, Norfolk, Va., (furnishing CVG 173, CVG 174, VF31, VF37, VA35, and VA25), the Naval Gun Factory, Washington, D. C., Naval Air Station, Columbus, Ohio, and the Bureau of Aeronautics Representative and Chance-Vought Aircraft Corp., Dallas, Tex.

Flying the Cutlass was Lt. Comdr. Ron Puckett, USN, attached to the Chance-Vought plant at Dallas. Also at the show was Comdr. G. W. (Red) Brooks, USN, Navy representative at the Chance-Vought plant.

cis J. (Pat) Murphy, Lt. Wallace (Bud) Rich, Lt. (jg) Dayl E. Crow, Lt. (jg) Roland E. (Auz) Aslund, and Lt. (jg) Francis J. Jones. Lt. Comdr. Frank A. Graham, jr., USNR, PIO for the team, accompanied them to Dayton.

Throughout the Navy's part of the show, the Navy announcer stressed that the aim of the demonstration was to tell the taxpayers the progress the Navy has made with the funds allotted to it.

The Navy also had attractive static displays set up in the hangars where spectators could see at close hand many displays showing service activities. The Navy's show was in charge of Lt. Comdr. William Neville, USN, of the Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

General Ravdin To Lecture

The U. S. Naval Medical School, National Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md., has announced the first guest lecture of the 1953-1954 series to be held in the auditorium at the Medical Center, on 25 Sept. at 8:15 P.M. A lecture on "Some Problems Facing Military Medicine" will be delivered by Dr. I. S. Ravdin, Professor of Surgery at the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Doctor Ravdin holds the rank of Brigadier General (MC) AUS. He was a member of the Armed Forces Medical Policy Council and since the reorganization of the Department of Defense, has been a member of the Advisory Council to the Assistant to the Secretary of Defense for Health and Medical Matters.

An invitation to attend the lecture has been extended to physicians, dentists and nurses in the Washington area.

Lt. Col. Carl Heads USMC Part in Air Show

Lt. Col. Marion E. Carl, Marine Corps pilot who has in the past few weeks established a new unofficial world's altitude record and more recently flown faster than any military pilot, led the participation of more than 300 Marine air-ground personnel during the National Aircraft Show held 5, 6, and 7 Sept. at Cox Municipal Airport, Dayton, Ohio.

Marine Corps Aviations' first swept wing jet aircraft made their first public appearance during the air show. Lt. Col. Carl was at the controls of the North American FJ2 "Fury," a new version of the "Sabre" jet, modified for use aboard aircraft carriers. Maj. Royce Watson flew the new Grumman F9F6 "Cougar" photographic plane.

Day and night fighters, attack planes, helicopters and photographic planes were featured in the Marine air-ground show which highlighted 40 minutes of action in the sky. Displays of aircraft and equipment on the ground illustrated the broad capabilities of Leatherneck aviation.

Show Marine Aircraft

In addition to the FJ2 "Fury" and the F9F6 "Cougar," the Marines utilized F2H4 McDonald "Banshees," R4Q Fairchild "Packet" transports, HRS and HO5S Sikorsky Helicopters, the F3D "Skynight," all-weather jet fighter; the AD Douglas "Skyraider" attack bomber and the F4U Chance-Vought "Corsair" fighter bombers.

Marine Corps planes and personnel participating were primarily from the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., and the Marine Corps' Air Stations at Cherry Point, N. C., and Miami, Fla.

Full air support was given a simulated ground attack as a squadron of F2H "Banshee" jets, led by Lt. Col. W. H. "Wild Bill" Sims, softened enemy fire by repeated low level strafing runs to protect the 'copters.

Capt. Stewart Park, USMC, of the Marine Corps Air Station, Quantico, Va., had charge of the Marine Corps static exhibit, with Capt. Charles R. Armington, USMC, of Cherry Point, N. C., handling the aircraft on display.

'Copter Accident

The only mishap of the show occurred 6 Sept., when the rotor blades of two Marine Corps HRS 'copters that had just completed a fly-by hit each other. One piloted by Maj. William T. Tebow, jr., of HMX 1, Quantico, Va., came down in an open area and caught fire. S/Sgt. O. L. Steen, also of HMX 1, jumped out of a nearby 'copter and dragged Major Tebow from the burning craft.

Major Tebow was taken to a Dayton Hospital but fortunately was found to be suffering only from minor cuts and abrasions.

The other 'copter, piloted by 1st Lt. P. M. Gish, of Cherry Point, retained some power, but was vibrating violently. He maneuvered the craft down between two converted barracks, but the tail hit one of the houses and the machine tangled in telephone wires. Lieutenant Gish, however, was uninjured.

Exchange Marine Officers

"The close relationship between the famed British Royal Marines and the U. S. Marine Corps will soon be further cemented by an exchange of officer-students," Marine Corps Headquarters has announced.

At the request of the British government, a Marine officer will be sent to England to enter a series of Royal Marine courses that include many phases of amphibious and commando training.

A Royal Marine officer-student is presently enrolled in the Naval Gunfire Officers School at the Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va. He is Capt. Athol MacGregor Robertson.

Award Medals of Honor

Vice President Richard M. Nixon presented posthumous Medals of Honor on 9 Sept., to the families of five Marines who died heroically in Korea.

The presentations were made in a ceremony at the Marine Barracks, Washington, D. C.

Those receiving the awards were relatives of the late 2d Lt. Sherrod Emerson Skinner, jr., S/Sgt. William E. Shuck, jr., S/Sgt. Lewis G. Watkins, Pfc. John D. Kelly and Pvt. Jack William Kelso.

Attending the ceremony were General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps, and General Lucius D. Clay, USA-Ret.

Marine Corps Prepares Powerful Assault Punch

General Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., said this week that the Marine Corps, with a strength of 248,000 officers and men, "is in a very healthy state."

Speaking before the National Security Industrial Association in Washington, D. C., on 10 Sept., the Marine Commandant said the Corps' program for the coming year can be summed up under two headings:

"First and foremost," he said, "the Marine Corps will put all possible effort into developing, improving and training our force-in-readiness . . .

"Second, we will continue our energetic pursuit of the means of making our amphibious specialty more effective."

Discussing the role of the helicopter in present-day warfare, General Shepherd said the Corps now has "for the first time, a real helicopter troop transport designed and built to our own specifications," (see THE JOURNAL, 1 Aug., p. 1486).

He said the new transport helicopter is the largest and fastest helicopter being built today, and "will carry two combat assault squads—that is, about 26 fully equipped men."

The Commandant said, with this 'copter now in sight, he believes the Marines are "capable of following up an atomic attack with the most powerful assault punch possessed by any nation in the world today."

MILLIONS OF HOURS AHEAD in lightweight turbo-machinery!

Today, AiResearch has a backlog of 25 million hours of actual operating field experience in lightweight turbines. These units provide auxiliary power, starting power, pressurization, heating and refrigeration for U. S. aircraft. With rpm's ranging from 10,000 to 100,000, average efficiency is 83%.

The many thousand AiResearch turbine machines now in operation are the result of a pioneering development and manufacturing program begun 9 years ago. In its course more than 2 and 1/4 million hours were spent in engineering development, plus over 100,000 hours of laboratory tests.

This experience where others are still exploring is typical of AiResearch leadership in the small but highly efficient power and control units required in the many fields of modern industry.

U. S. AIR FORCE

AF OCS Class Is Hit By '54 Budget Cutback

The first budget-revamped Air Force Officer Candidate Class of fiscal year 1954 was graduated this week at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Among its more than 500 graduates, only 125 were scheduled to be called to active duty as lieutenants. Of the remainder, except for those who volunteered for flying training, two alternatives were available: (1) the graduate, if he had two years' service or more, could apply for separation; (2) or else he could revert to his airman's rank and continue on active duty.

The Air Force has said that all OCS graduates who apply for flying training will be called to active duty as second lieutenants.

The decision not to call about 75 per cent of the OCS graduates to active duty was necessitated by cutbacks in Air Force manpower.

The four OCS classes during the current fiscal year will send about 500 non-flying officers to active duty. The remainder will receive Reserve commissions, but will be separated from active duty or continued in active service as airmen.

Capt. Forrest Wilson Wins "Scramble Mission" Race

The Allison Trophy event, a "scramble mission" and dash from Indianapolis to Dayton, Ohio, on 6 Sept. was won by Capt. Forrest Wilson, USAF, of Bergstrom AFB, Tex., an alternate member of the scramble team who was not even listed in the original entries.

The race was an event of the National Aircraft Show held at Dayton, Ohio, as a part of the celebration of the Fiftieth Anniversary of Powered Flight.

Captain Wilson, as did all the participants, flew a Republic F84-G Thunderjet powered with an Allison J35-29 turbojet engine.

The race started from Weir Cook Airport, Indianapolis. Captain Wilson's time for the distance of 115 miles was 537.802 miles per hour.

The timer's record showed the following figures for elapsed time and miles per hour:

	Elapsed Time	Speed MPH
1 Wilson, Forrest, Capt...	12:17.2	537.802
2 Schuler, R. J., Capt...	12:26.2	531.316
3 Sansing, V. E., Maj...	12:32.0	527.218
4 Stanley, N. D., Maj...	12:33.5	526.168

The first Allison Trophy event in 1947 was a dash by Air Force pilots from Cleveland to Indianapolis and return. Six USAF Lockheed F-80 Shooting Stars participated. It was won by Capt. Richard H. Burnor at an average speed of 495 miles per hour.

The 1949 Allison Trophy event was performed by five pilots of the Air National Guard also flying Lockheed F-80's. Their course was from Indianapolis to Cleveland, and they represented the first five Air National Guard fighter squadrons to be equipped with jet aircraft. The event was won by Lt. Walter C. Rew of the 196th Fighter Squadron, California Air National Guard, at an average speed of 594.8 miles per hour.

Two New 'Copter Records Set by Capt. R. M. Dobyns

Two new records for helicopters were established by Capt. Russell M. Dobyns, USAF, it was announced at the National Aircraft Show held at Dayton, Ohio, over the Labor Day week-end.

Captain Dobyns went to 22,289 feet on 2 Sept. to set an altitude record. Captain Dobyns flew a Piasecki YH21 "Work Horse" powered by a Wright R-1820 engine. He bettered the former record of 21,220 feet set by Capt. H. D. Jabbins, in a Sikorsky S52 at Bridgeport, Conn., in 1949.

Captain Dobyns also set a helicopter speed record over a three-kilometer straightaway course at 146.735, flying the same Piasecki YH21. He beat the previous record of 129.952 mph. made by Harold E. Thompson in a S-52.

The new records were announced by General Nathan F. Twining, Chief of Staff of the Air Force, who attended the National Aircraft Show.

Captain Dobyns is stationed at the Air Proving Ground Command, Eglin AFB, Fla.

Officials of the Piasecki Helicopter Corporation pointed out that the Air Force holds an operating limit of 1,150 horsepower on the R-1820 Wright engine that powers the helicopter. The engine can produce a maximum of 1,425 horsepower.

Captain Dobyns entered the Air Force in June, 1942, and received his commission at Turner AFB, Ga. He flew 32 combat missions with the 8th Air Force in England during 1943 as a B-17 pilot and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal.

In June, 1952 he was ordered to Korea where he piloted an USAF Air Rescue Service helicopter through 71 missions. Along with frontline evacuations of patients, Captain Dobyns is credited with the rescue of an Air Force pilot who had been downed behind enemy lines.

He is presently assigned as project officer for helicopter operational stability tests at Eglin.

The Piasecki H-21 normally carries a crew of four, pilot, co-pilot, engineer and medical attendant, and can be outfitted with 12 litters or to carry 14 equipped troops.

Brig. Gen. J. Stanley Holtoner, Commander of the Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Calif., set a new record of 690.118 miles an hour for the 100 kilometer closed course on 2 Sept., in a North American F86D Sabre Jet powered by a General Electric J47-17 turbojet engine.

During the National Aircraft show, General Holtzner again exceeded Miss Cochran's mark, but not his own, when he flew 681.576 mph. to take the Thompson Trophy. The trophy was presented by Thompson Products, Inc., whose president, Frederick C. Crawford, was also Chairman of the executive committee for the air show.

He made major contributions towards the development of two of the nation's top World War II fighters, flying comparative tests on the first P-38's and the P-43, the prototype of the P-47. His specialty has been aerial gunnery tactics.

General and Mrs. Holtner, the former Mary Jane Thomas, have two children, J. Stanley, jr., and Mary Jane, and reside at Edwards Air Force Base.

Fairchild C-119 Flying Boxcars added to their long list of mercy missions late last month by playing major roles in rushing aid to the victims of recent Greek earthquakes.

Fifteen C-119's of the 317th Troop Carrier Wing attached to Neubiberg Air Base at Munich, Germany, were dispatched to Athens to carry out relief missions. This was the second major disaster aid operation for Europe-based Flying Boxcars in the past eight months.

The Air Force transports flew American Red Cross supplies such as blankets and medicine from Geneva, Switzerland, to the 'quake-ravaged Ionian Islands off the Greek coast. Within a matter of hours, the vitally needed cargo was landed at Athens and was being distributed in the disaster area.

Flying Boxcar crews of the 39th, 40th, and 41st Troop Carrier Squadrons voluntarily remained aboard their aircraft overnight at Athens, ready to meet any Overall supervisor of the mercy lift was Lt. Gen. William H. Tunner, commander of all U. S. Air Force operations in Europe and organizer of the historic Berlin Airlift after World War II.

The size of the Greek disaster operations is indicated by the fact that ships of the U. S. Navy's 6th Fleet, the British Navy, and Greek vessels participated along with U. S. Air Force planes.

Capt. Harold E. Collins, ARDC experimental test pilot, flew 707.889 miles per hour 1 Sept. to set a new high mark for the 15 kilometer straightaway speed record. Captain Collins piloted a North American F86D, powered by a General Electric J47-17 jet engine.

The new record was announced publicly at the National Aircraft Show, last week-end in Dayton, Ohio. At the air show, Captain Collins flew a similar course in the General Electric World Record Run.

Captain Collins is assigned to the Fighter Operations Section, Directorate

Captain Collins entered military service on 26 Feb. 1943 and was commissioned 8 Sept. 1944. He is rated as a senior pilot. He served in World War II and in the Korean campaign. In World War II, Captain Collins served in the European Theater as a fighter pilot. His decorations include the Air Medal with Oak Leaf Clusters as well as the various campaign ribbons.

"No real security rests in a second best Air Force."—
PRESIDENT DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER.

Air Force's Birthday. So much has happened and progress has been so swift, it is difficult to realize the Department of the Air Force will be only six years old on 17 September, next Thursday.

The fact is, of course, that although a statutory part of the Army, the Air Force had, since early in World War II, been virtually autonomous. From the beginning, President Roosevelt had insisted the Air Force be separately represented on his original Joint Chiefs of Staff by the late General H. H. Arnold. When the Army Air Force became the U. S. Air Force operating under its own Department of the Air Force, there was a major change in administration (and many growing pains) but it did not mean the creation of a new force—only the recognition of one that had long existed.

But those six years have been fast and eventful. In 1947 the Air Force was still working under the 55-group program of President Truman. The President's Air Policy Committee under the chairmanship of Thomas K. Finletter and the Joint Congressional Policy Board under Senator Owen Brewster had, earlier in that year, accepted the Air Force's plea for a 70-group objective and made that the feature of their recommendations. Then world tension increased and Communist aggression broke out in Korea, so that eventually this goal was more than doubled when the Joint Chiefs of Staff decided that the United States needed an Air Force of 143 groups. Now, while still well short of that mark, the goal has been pigeon-holed pending a new study of needs in light of new world conditions, a new administration, and new budgetary policies.

In its short tenure, the young U. S. Air Force has been fortunate in the stature and strength of its leadership. Its first Secretary, W. Stuart Symington, fought to the limit while he was in office and now, as Senator, is the Air Force's strongest protagonist in Congress. Its second Secretary, Mr. Finletter, took office already fortified by experience and convictions gained as Chairman of the President's Air Policy Committee. The present Secretary, Harold E. Talbott, has a valuable background in the aviation industry and has shown a determination to give the Service his best. The three Chiefs of Staff, General Carl Spaatz, General Hoyt S. Vandenberg, and General Nathan F. Twining made Air Force history in Europe and the Far East.

Much has been made of inter-Service rivalries and controversies, but there can be no doubt that the American people welcomed the change that made the Air Force co-equal with its older sister Services of the Army and Navy. All will join in extending best wishes on the Air Force's sixth anniversary.

Attacks on "Brass." General Matthew B. Ridgway touched on a most important element in the loss of career attractiveness when he deplored the current tendency to make shotgun attacks on military "brass." With a few notable exceptions, Congressional Committees have too frequently sought political popularity by attacks upon the Services. Charges of waste, inefficiency, laxity and many other criticisms often are bandied about in hastily prepared official reports that give the Services little or no chance to retaliate.

General Ridgway pointed out that such action tends to break down the vital relationship between the officer corps and the enlisted personnel. It has another very damaging effect. Many officers otherwise happy in their Service careers, feel that the prestige that once went with a Commission in the Armed Forces is being lost as a result of these attacks. Love of Service

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Commander Tinsley's letter, subscribing to earlier comments on love of Service, seems to evince a curious contradiction in his own viewpoint. His only criticism of Colonel Thurston's letter is that it is addressed to a particular Service, although applying "with equal appropriateness to the entire Defense Department military personnel." Why, then, does the commander single out, thereby vitiating his good letter, a particular example of officer, the Service Academy graduate, to take a potshot at him over the matter of non-credit for his Academy service, and to doubt his love for his calling? I question whether the Annapolis or West Point graduates of the Services have been more voluble, on the whole, about "career attractiveness" than officers from other sources.

A Service Academy education is, admittedly, a valuable prize to be earned from Uncle Sam. Today, there are additional ways that a man in uniform can further or complete his education at government expense and on government time, time that counts, although Academy service, performed under full military jurisdiction yet is not counted. Academy graduates are naturally aware of the discrepancy and are as entitled as the next fellow to their various opinions about it.

"I came up from the ranks and worked hard for all I ever got," writes the commander. He should not forget that a sizable proportion of Academy graduates also started in the enlisted ranks, "coming up" by way of a cadetship.

I would also point out a truth not always given due value, that the remainder also "come from the ranks," the ranks of two of the best of the Services—many training units, the Brigade of Midshipmen and the Corps of Cadets. To argue that they were "never enlisted" is a purely technical differentiation in terminology that proves empty. They also have "worked hard for all they got," beginning with their entrance exams and continuing for the rest of their cadet and commissioned service.

I'm sure that, with their background they, too, along with Commander Tinsley and Colonel Thurston in vast majority, love the Service above all petty gripes.

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Your assistance is requested in locating buddies of my son, John Anthony Buonopane, ASN 11-054-268, reported killed 7 Nov. 1944 at Hurtgen Forest (Raffelsbrand) Germany. Last reported address was: Pvt. John A. Buonopane, Co. E, 110 Inf., APO 28, New York, N. Y.

A letter received from the Quartermaster General, Washington, D. C., dated 8 Aug. 1949, Serial NR QMGMF-293, stated that my son's strong approval in world opinion. From letters from prisoners, reports from returnees, names used in Communist propaganda broadcasts, and other authenticated sources, General Bryan's group had assembled a list of 3404 names, including 944 Americans, who must be assumed to remain under Red control.

The sorry record of the Soviets in concealing German and Japanese prisoners many years after the termination of hostilities has not been forgotten by those nations who place higher value on the individual and his welfare than do the communists. This, together with our insistence on the rights of our prisoners to reject repatriation, demonstrates to the peoples under communist oppression, as well as to those of the free world, that we fight for men and women and not for world power.

IN THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago—The unconditional surrender of the armed forces of Italy was announced by the commander-in-chief of the United Nations forces in the Mediterranean area. Hostilities between the armed forces of the United Nations and those of Italy terminate at once. All Italians who now act to help eject the German aggressor from Italian soil will have the assistance and the support of the United Nations.

50 Years Ago—Notwithstanding the shortage of officers for the Navy, the granting of a three years' leave of absence to Comdr. R. E. Peary in order that he may make another attempt to reach the North Pole will be generally commended. American exploration in the Arctic began under a joint resolution of Congress adopted in 1850. Commander Peary's achievements in that field entitle him to the largest measure of support in another effort to reach the supreme goal of Arctic research.

90 Years Ago—England, France, and Austria, after consultation, have given up the plan of a joint note to Russia in reply to a late (Russian) dispatch, but agreeing upon the points, each has written for himself, and in his own way. It is worthy of note, that a preliminary paper has appeared in France, in the form of an ably written pamphlet, which is probably one of Napoleon's habitual, politic anchors to the windward. This is addressed to the French first, then to the Poles, to England, Russia, Austria, and Prussia; and its object is to show that, while Russia has no cause to complain of France, there is abundant cause, both on general principles, and for particular reasons, to interfere in the Polish question.

remains were found by a civilian woodcutter. The letter also stated his remains were buried on 13 May 1947 in Plot W, Row 10, Grave 244, in the United States Military Cemetery, Neuville-En-Condruz, Belgium.

Hits Retirement Rules

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

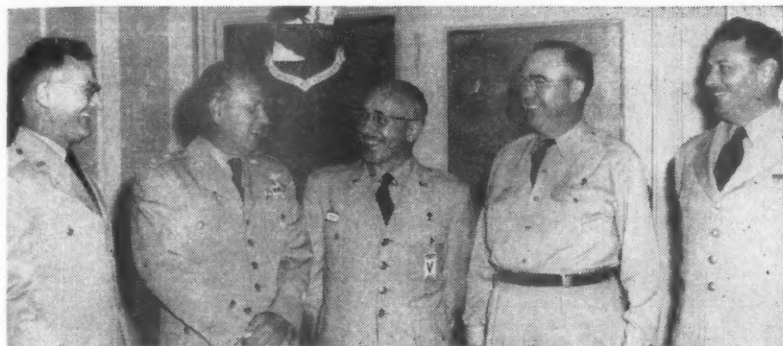

In referring to the 8 Aug. edition of THE JOURNAL, I was much interested in the brief article "WAF Lt. Col. who joined in '42 Retires with 25." I am a bit perplexed in this matter. Is it a fact that this woman, with about 8 years of active duty in the WAF, retires as a Lt. Col. with retired pay at the 25 year level or $360.00 monthly? If so, I shall add this item to my long list of grievances.

I hold no briefs for the dear lady colonel, more power to her. But I do have much to say about those who sanction, condone and abet a system that permit conditions like the above event to occur. The poor suckers, Taxpayers, are due for no consideration.

The above is but one of thousands of unusual cases and conditions so common to the Military Retirement System. These should be ruled out, cancelled, nullified and forbidden.

SAC Chaplains Face Special Problems As Bomb Units Move To And From O'Seas

(The training shifts during recent weeks which have sent units of the far-flung Strategic Air Command to and from overseas—for example, the B-36 flights to the Far East and the transfer of B-47 wings in England and the U. S.—make particularly timely the following report of how skilled SAC chaplains are caring for the needs of airmen and their families under these conditions.)

WITH the whole world its backyard, the U. S. Air Force's Strategic Air Command is unique as a modern military organization. But no matter where in the world SAC airmen may be sent, they will always find a chaplain.

Chaplains are stationed at the command's advanced overseas bases, and, in addition, whenever sizable groups of stateside Strategic Air Command personnel move overseas temporarily for training purposes, a chaplain usually goes along.

The role played by SAC's chaplains, over 150 in number, is essential in keeping the entire command ready and alert. As Chaplain (Col.) John C. W. Linsley, Command Staff Chaplain, explains: "SAC knows that religious and moral welfare of its men is one of the things most vital to the success of its mission."

Special Problems Posed

The frequent periods of temporary overseas duty, common in SAC, pose special problems for SAC's chaplains. "Not only must we help take care of the men going overseas," Chaplain Linsley says, "but we must also care for the dependents who are left behind." SAC's chaplains feel a special responsibility towards these families and are readily available to aid in any special problems that may arise during the airmen's absence.

Directing this world-wide SAC program is a corps of seven command staff chaplains, four full colonels and three lieutenant colonels, who give SAC claim to the biggest store of religious experience, both military and civilian, in any Air Force command.

Chief SAC Chaplain Linsley is an Episcopalian from Indianapolis, Ind. He has been an Air Force staff chaplain since 1942, serving as chief chaplain for Technical Training Command, First Air Force, Tenth Air Force (China-Burma-India theatre), Air Materiel Command and Far East Air Force prior to his appointment at SAC in early 1952. While FEAF chaplain, 1949-1951, Chaplain Linsley travelled thousands of miles supervising Air Force religious activities in such diverse outposts as Korea, Guam and Iwo Jima.

Three Full Colonels

Three full colonels also held the staff chaplain position in each of SAC's three sub-commands—the 2d, 8th, and 15th Air Forces.

Chaplain (Col.) William J. Clasby, Roman Catholic from Los Altos, Calif., is 2d Air Force staff chaplain and joined SAC recently after an assignment as chaplain of the Alaskan Air Command. Chaplain (Col.) Roy Reynolds, Baptist of LeMay, Mo., is 8th Air Force staff chaplain. A chaplain since 1931, Chaplain Reynolds was staff chaplain with USAFE (U. S. Air Forces in Europe) and has also served at Headquarters, USAF, in Washington. Chaplain (Col.) Leslie F. Zimmerman, Disciples of Christ, from Spokane, Wash., is 15th Air Force staff chaplain and was recently chaplain of the Air University Command. Chaplain Zimmerman is a survivor of the Bataan death march and is one of the two remaining chaplains who was on duty in the Philippines in Dec. 1941.

The Deputy Staff Chaplain in Headquarters, SAC, is Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Stephen T. Mayer, Roman Catholic, from Aberdeen, S. Dak. Chaplain Mayer recently served a tour of duty in the Pacific with MATS (Military Air Transport Service) where, owing to the scarcity of Roman Catholic chaplains in the area, he served Army and Navy troops, as well as the Air Force. So often did he cross the international date line in his work that, he reports, "Sometimes I found myself saying Christmas midnight mass on two successive evenings."

Staff Chaplains O'seas

SAC also has staff chaplains at each of its two overseas air divisions—the 5th in North Africa and the 7th in the United Kingdom. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) John D. Long, Roman Catholic, from Boston, Mass., is 5th Air Division chaplain; and Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Joseph D. Andrew, Evangelical Reformed, from Skyland, N. C., is 7th Air Division chaplain. Both chaplains are now serving on their third tour overseas.

At base level, seven other SAC chaplains hold the rank of lieutenant colonel. Here, however, the range of experience is much wider. Many of SAC's younger chaplains in the field are first lieutenants, fresh from civilian pulpits and seminaries.

At each base chaplains are directing an active six-point program that includes on-base religious services; religious and moral education; personal counseling; humanitarian projects, such as assisting in relief activities in nearby localities; cultural activities, such as sponsoring concerts, drama groups, choirs and religious plays; and liaison with civilian churches.

It's 24-hours-a-day work, but regardless of geographical location, SAC's chaplains are always on call, making sure that all personnel and their dependents get the best in religious care and services.

Navy Chaplains' Record

The Navy has revealed that 166 Navy Chaplains have served with the Marines in Korea since August 1950 and approximately 150 other Chaplains have served on ships in Korean waters.

Ninety-six Navy Chaplains have received 158 medals and decorations exclusive of campaign bars and unit awards from the Korean Government. The award include four Silver Star medals, three Legions of Merit, 33 Bronze Stars, 49 Letters of Commendation with Ribbon, and 14 Purple Hearts. Fourteen Navy Chaplains have been wounded but none have been killed or captured.

West German Election Victory for EDC

LAST Sunday's elections in West Germany resulted in unexpectedly complete success for Chancellor Adenauer and, in a large sense, for us as well. For, as Herr Adenauer repeatedly stated, this was a test of West Germany's attitude toward the European Defense Community which, French as it was in origin, has come to be associated closely with America's hope for western defense. Herr Adenauer's Christian Democratic party emerged with 244 of the 487 Bundestag seats, a real, if narrow, majority—and the first majority which German voters in a free election have given to any party whatever in many years. No longer, then, is the Chancellor (who will be reelected at the Bundestag session on 2 Oct.) dependent upon a coalition, although he can certainly count on further support from the Free Democrats and the German Party with their 48 and 15 votes respectively. The main opposition party, the Socialists, improved their own representation slightly, to 150 seats, but in effect lost ground through the Christian Democrats' much larger relative gain. The heaviest losses were sustained by the extremist parties, the Communists on one side losing all 15 of their old seats and the equally obnoxious neo-Nazis on the other side also emerging from this epochal election without representation in the Bundestag.

WITH UNDERSTANDABLE ELATION Herr Adenauer, who had gallantly staked his political life on the EDC issue, having already pushed an endorsement of it through the old parliament, announced promptly his conviction that the other five states of the compact will likewise provide parliamentary approval before the year is out. This is a bold prediction, for only the lower house in the Netherlands has thus far joined Germany. Italy has defeated DeGasper, a prime advocate of EDC, the Belgian and Luxembourg parliaments are marking time, and France (despite the fact that one of France's numerous governments proposed the EDC and another one endorsed it) has shown to that plan more hostility than friendship.

Yet it would be unwise to ridicule Herr Adenauer's confident forecast, for the influence of his victory may very well reach beyond West Germany's confines. France, in all truth, is in a difficult position today, for the sane concept of the EDC is that it would provide an end to the long-standing antagonism between Gaul and Teuton, by affording to both a sense of security from designs of the other. The fact that two French governments have supported that concept is unforgettable. Equally unforgettable is the present fact that West Germany has made a remarkable recovery in economic strength and in political unity, and at the moment is ready to begin supplying the European Defense Community with the ten promised divisions of the new European Army, as soon as the other five EDC powers summon it into existence. Or, by inference which France is free to make, West Germany is capable of providing those ten divisions, to start with, as a purely German venture, and as a most welcome contribution to the western defense of the NATO powers if that, rather than an EDC component, should be sought by anybody.

FRANCE, in other words, which was to be by design the largest factor in EDC, has the uncomfortable awareness that if she balks now at the alliance which she herself originated, West Germany may be welcomed by an impatient NATO as a potent factor of western defense, and ultimately a larger factor than France. And there must be a further awareness in Paris that American aid which had been confidently expected by France (as the dominant power in western Europe) might instead go largely to this other power, nearer to Russia and apparently readier at the moment to cooperate with the other western powers. And France is surely aware that the Congress has already authorized (but not directed) the President's retention of $1,000,000,000 in aid from such proposed recipients as do not cooperate in the much-wanted EDC. From financial and political and military considerations alike, then, and from self-esteem as well, France is almost compelled to reexamine the case for EDC. Herr Adenauer may be right.

EAST OF THE IRON CURTAIN there can be very little liking for any part of the West German election, and small comfort from realizing that an immense factor in West Germany's marked shift to the western alliance was Communism's own egregious blunders in East Germany. Even Herr Adenauer's best qualities, and they are admirable, could not have achieved such a victory save with the unintended aid of Moscow, whose shocking behavior in East Germany in early summer was an overpowering argument for a western alliance and for everything which was represented by Moscow's arch-foe, Adenauer. It is too early to attempt any exact diagnosis, but at the moment it is hard to doubt that the effect of this election upon the imprisoned peoples of the satellite states is electric. If they still can smile, they should be smiling broadly at Pravda's explanation—that the capitalistic powers influenced the voting. Any Red state should chuckle at the Kremlin's sudden zeal for free election practices. But chiefly these imprisoned peoples must still thrill with the knowledge that so near the Iron Curtain, and in spite of Moscow's savage attempts to interfere and terrify, a great people have repudiated the Reds and united with the West just as fully as this vote allows.

AS HERR ADENAUER SHREWDLY REASONS, the lesson of this victory is read by our own hesitant allies in most timely manner. It is inevitable that weak western states, disturbed by France's recent reluctance to go along with EDC and by evidences of political and other weaknesses from which our oldest Ally unmistakably suffers, must have watched the West German elections with misgivings. Had Adenauer's party, or even his coalition, lost control of parliament, the effect upon NATO itself (which has come to look forward with great hope to those ten German divisions) would have been disturbing. The realistic Gruenther must have sat up late watching the returns, and at length retired, a happier man.

That reliable Supreme Commander at SHAPE remains one of EDC's prime assets, as were his predecessors, Generals Eisenhower and Ridgway, with his calm and unswerving but eternally tactful support of the EDC program, as well as of the NATO enterprise in which for these three years and more he has had a toweringly important responsibility. Nobody knows better than General Gruenther the difficulty of increasing the quantity of current military participation by NATO's members, as well as the two attendant necessities—continuing betterment of the quality and cooperation of SHAPE's forces and obtaining that significant increase in their quantity by way of West Germany in the not too distant future. It would be futile to expect of EDC more than it can provide, and some of the present overfond hopes which one encounters will stand a little realistic trimming. But, without counting upon too much in the distant future, we must be ready to exploit this promising opportunity for maintaining western security through a term of years just ahead of us. The western world can find plenty of present reason to rejoice in Adenauer's magnificent victory.

MEMO*News And Gossip
For Journal Readers*

NEW ASST. SECDEF SEATON, who will be in charge of legislative affairs, may prove most influential also in guiding new Pentagon public information policies. In the past, legislative liaison and public information activities sometimes have been linked under one office in the separate Services. Mr. Seaton, a noted Nebraska newspaper and magazine publisher, could conceivably counsel a return to such a set-up. With the departure this month of Andrew H. Berding, Defense Dept. pubinfo chief, and the recent shift of Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, Army pubinfor chief to be Second Army CG, this seems a most likely time for long rumored changes and consolidation in the pubinfo activities of all the Services.

USMC PUBLIC INFORMATION activities, which have been directed by Col. Raymond F. Crist, jr., since mid-June, are expected to be handed over to a general officer again early next Spring. The new Director may be Brig. Gen. Joseph C. Burger, now Assistant Commander of the 1st Marine Division in Korea.

SERVICE PSYCHOLOGISTS this week analyzed progress made in development of tests which proponents hope will make it possible to pre-determine a man's emotional stability—or lack of it—in combat. The problem commanded important consideration at the American Psychological Assn. meeting in Cleveland. Particularly cogent were reports on the evaluation of actual performances in Korea by men previously given experimental indicator tests.

THE ARMY'S SICK RATE has hit a new low—only .85 per 1000 men. Normally, the sick rate runs about 1 per cent. Aside from strict precautionary measures and over-all good health, one reason for the lowered rate is that men undergoing hospitalization are being restored to duty more quickly than previously. The happily-received sick rate decline is a prime reason why the Army found itself with a temporary surplus of doctors.

PUBLICITY PRECAUTION was exercised by the Marine Corps this week in connection with Gen. Shepherd's "disclosure" of the world's biggest and fastest helicopter. In addition to releasing the text of the Commandant's address to the National Security Industrial Assn., Marine Corps officials put out a special accompanying press announcement on the 'copter. Both were made available to Pentagon reporters two days in advance. Journal readers were told about the new 'copter on 1 Aug.

THE AF LIQUOR REGULATION calls upon commanders to "encourage abstinence, enforce moderation and prevent overindulgence." The companion Army regulation, released earlier, is the same insofar as abstinence and moderation are concerned, but stated, as reported in last week's Journal, that commanders will "punish overindulgence." As a result of the tempest caused by the new unified regulations for all the Services, the Defense Department finds itself on the end of uncapped criticism from such surprising allies as the WCTU and the retail liquor dealers.

ARMY REENLISTMENT RATES are going up and—with establishment on 1 Sept. of a guaranteed ZI tour of 18 months for Regular Army personnel after overseas duty—are expected to go higher. At Ft. Benning, Ga., for example, the re-up rate reached 73.14% in August—top monthly total in two years.

ANXIOUS FOR NATL. GUARD SUPPORT, the Army and Air Force will send their top military spokesmen, Generals Ridgway and Twining, to address the Diamond Jubilee Conference of the National Guard Assn. at San Diego 19-22 Oct. These meetings invariably result in numerous resolutions blasting Pentagon policies. This year figures to be no exception, although presence of the Chiefs of Staff may tone down some of the anticipated blasts on such matters as recruiting, issuance of modern equipment and training facilities.

NATL. GUARD OFFICERS—Army and Air—will be flown by the hundreds to the San Diego meeting in a fleet of 101 Air National Guard transport planes, manned by ANG crews. The convention is recognized as an "official assemblage dealing with defense matters," according to Guard officials. Hence crews and aircraft can be placed on "active duty for training purposes."

REGULAR WAVE OFFICERS are deeply disturbed over the Navy's decision not to hold a selection board this year for commander. One-fourth of the present lieutenant commanders will be forced to retire because of age unless selected for promotion by fiscal '57 and more than 100 others face forced separation during the same period unless selected for promotion to lieutenant commander.

NEW EMPHASIS ON THE AIR ARM of the Marine Corps is coming to pass. As predicted in these columns, the Director of Marine Aviation has been awarded his third star and one-third of the officers recently selected for BG are aviators.

"NOT ONE SINGLE MAN" among the many thousands of officers and sailors of the recent Navy middle cruise to Brazil was involved in "even a comparatively minor disturbance during the entire stay," according to Navy officials. The Navy was concerned that communist agitators, known to be at work, would create incidents involving U.S. Navy personnel. Some Reds "tried to create such a breach," the Navy says, "and were most noted for their utter failure." Navy Secretary Anderson has given a "truly 4.0 performance in international relations" to the task force of nautical good-will ambassadors.

A NAVY-SPONSORED STUDY advocates assignment of officers to Washington for four year tours. Top civilian Defense officials are said to look on such a proposal with considerable favor. On the other hand, many in uniform oppose such a tour (normal duty is now three years) on the grounds that it could frustrate career advancement, particularly for officers with dual abilities as administrators and combat commanders.

UP TO 1000 ARMY W.O.'S may be caught in the manpower squeeze during the current fiscal year. Virtually all publicity has gone to officer cutbacks, but the Army now has about 14,000 warrant officers, or roughly 1000 more than budget ceilings will permit for any extended period. If normal attrition doesn't do the job, some W.O.'s will be in for the "RIF" treatment. The Army hopes it won't be necessary, but officials concede it's at least a 50-50 possibility as of the moment.

Tough to please...

This man knows what it takes.
From the Coral Sea to Korea, he a weapons system.

Today at Martin an entirely new principle of aircraft design and development is in operation, tailoring airpower to this man's needs.

It is known as Martin Systems
Engineering. MSE is a method of weapons systems development which now makes possible aircraft, guided missiles and electronics weapons designed not as traditional flying vehicles which are the direct result of operations problems.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

THE Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. Robert B. Carney were honored Thursday by the Commandant of the Marine Corps and Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd, jr., who were hosts at a dress parade followed by a reception in their quarters.

General and Mrs. Shepherd are being felicitated upon the birth of two grandsons, one born to their son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Lemuel C. Shepherd 3d, and the other the son of their daughter and Maj. James B. Ord, stationed at Quantico, as is Captain Shepherd.

G-1 Dinner Dance—

Maj. Gen. Robert N. Young and Mrs. Young, USA, headed the reception line last night at the first formal dinner-dance held by the officers of the G-1 staff, with some 200 or more officers meeting at the Officers' Club at Ft. McNair. Others in the receiving line were Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Boniface Campbell and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Herbert B. Powell. Mrs. Young will be hostess at a luncheon Wednesday, 16 Sept., with Mrs. M. Brennenman for wives of officers of the G-1 staff.

Army-Navy League—

The Woman's Army and Navy League, of which Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower is Honorary President, will hold its first Executive Board meeting of the fall season on Monday, 14 Sept. The Board, headed by Mrs. Claude B. Mickelwait, the League's President, will meet at the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club at 10:30 A.M.

The League will this year add three more distinguished members to its list of Honorary Vice-presidents: Mrs. Arthur W. Radford, wife of Admiral Radford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Mrs. Matthew B. Ridgway, wife of General Ridgway, Chief of Staff of the Army; and Mrs. Robert B. Carney, wife of Admiral Carney, Chief of Naval Operations. All three new Honorary Vice-presidents will be present at the Board meeting Monday.

A full season of activity is being planned by the League, which sponsors the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club which, at 1015 L Street, NW, provides a home-away-from-home for servicemen coming to Washington from all over the country. At the club, in homelike surroundings, the men can enjoy good lodging, excellent food, and healthy recreation at minimum costs.

Last year more than 28,000 servicemen were lodged at the club and an equal number of meals were served. Large as these figures are, there are many more servicemen who try to use the club's facilities, but because of limited space must be sent to other service centers in the city. During the month of April alone, more than 831 such servicemen who tried to find accommodations at the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club had to be sent elsewhere.

It is the object of the Woman's Army and Navy League to raise funds through annual benefits and membership drives in order to extend the club's facilities so that more servicemen can be accommodated each month.

Officers' Wives Club—

The Navy Supply Corps Officers' Wives' Club of Washington held its first luncheon of the season on 8 Sept. at the Army and Navy Country Club. The honored guest was Mrs. Robert B. Carney, wife of Admiral Carney, Chief of Naval Operations. Mrs. Robert B. Anderson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy, had expected to be present but was not in the city.

Mrs. Murrey L. Royar, president of the club and wife of Rear Admiral Royar, Chief of the Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, was joined in the receiving line by Mrs. Carney, Mrs. Walter W. Honaker, vice president and wife of Rear Admiral Honaker, Deputy and Assistant Chief of the Bureau; Mrs. Albert F. Ryan, jr., executive chairman and wife of Captain Ryan, and Mrs. Gordon M. Callison, luncheon chairman and wife of Commander Callison.

A fashion show was presented with Miss Dorothy Freeman as commentator.

President and First Lady Go to Chapel
And Attend Reception at Lowry AFB

President and Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower attended services Sunday, 6 Sept., at Chapel No. 1 at Lowry AFB, Colo.

Following the morning services they attended a reception at the Lowry Officers' Club. It was one of the few public appearances Mrs. Eisenhower has made since going to Denver where she has suffered from the altitude.

At the Chapel services, they heard a sermon by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Warren E. Ferguson, USAF. The Chaplain took as his theme the futility of substituting symbols and forms of religion for religious faith—such as carrying testaments into battle in the belief that they have magic power to protect life and yet without true faith in the teachings contained therein.

At the conclusion of the services, President Eisenhower thanked Chaplain Ferguson and later talked with him and Mrs. Ferguson at the reception.

About 600 officers and their wives attended the reception. A number of naval officers from nearby Buckley Field were present. The President shook hands with them and said he was glad to see the Navy represented. One of the Air Force officers commented that the Navy and Air Force get along well together. The President chuckled and remarked jokingly that all the Services get along well in the field. It's only in Washington that they "fight like cats and dogs," he added.

Gen. Bolling Tells How Third Army Trains Fighters For Any Emergency

School graduates account for nearly 15,000 of this total. Many of these graduates have been officers and men from Allied Nations.

The climate throughout the Southeast is ideally suited for combat training with fairly even temperatures the year-around. The result is fewer cancellations of training periods because of inclement weather than in most sections of the country. This is well illustrated at Ft. Jackson, South Carolina and Camp Rucker, Alabama, where men are trained in basic military skills twelve months of each year.

When they have completed basic training, Third Army soldiers can take advanced training in almost every combat and technical branch of the Army within this Army area.

Specialists Schools

Specialists schools here include the following:

The Infantry School, Ft. Benning, Ga.; the Southeastern Signal School, Camp Gordon, Ga.; the Provost Marshal General School, Camp Gordon, Ga.; the Physical Training School, Ft. Bragg, N. C.; the Ordnance Automotive School, Atlanta, Ga.; the Chemical Corps School, Ft. McClellan, Ala.; Third Army Area Food Service Schools at Ft. Benning, Ft. Bragg, and Ft. Jackson, S. C.; Ranger training in Florida, at Ft. Benning and at Dahlonga, Ga.; and the Common Specialists' Courses, at Ft. Jackson.

Within Third Army Area is another school of growing importance. This is the Psychological Warfare Center which was established at Ft. Bragg in 1952.

These schools offer ninety separate courses which help provide the Army with a wide array of technical specialists.

AA Firing Point

In addition, the Army's only anti-aircraft firing point east of the Mississippi with a year-round training program is at Camp Stewart. This is one of the largest military reservations in this country (along with Ft. Bragg and Ft. Benning). This center trained thousands of anti-aircraft specialists during World War II and 50,000 men were stationed there at one time. In addition to personnel of the active Army, thousands of National Guard and Army Reserve troops received anti-aircraft artillery training at Camp Stewart each summer.

Ft. McClellan, Ala., is the major site for Summer training of National Guard personnel. Approximately 27,750 men will be trained there during the summer of 1953.

Many Class II installations (operating centers of technical services) are also located in Third Army Area. Some of these specialized centers have been in operation since before the Civil War.

The large General Depots at Atlanta, Ga., and Memphis, Tenn., are busy keeping the Army supplied with tools of war.

Other important installations in this Army Area include the Atlanta Regional Army Audit Agency, the Quartermaster Industrial Mobilization District, the Columbia (S. C.) Quartermaster Market Center, and the Atlanta Lumber Agency.

Nat. Gd. & Reserves

Military districts and Regional Engineer offices are included in the administrative, supply, and training functions of this Army. The military districts include the National Guard, Army Reserve, and ROTC programs within each state.

By any standards, Third Army is big business. In Georgia, the Army is the second largest industry, with a payroll of $255,000,000 annually as compared to $450,000,000 by the textile industry. The Finance Office, Headquarters Third Army, disburses as much as $30,000,000 each month for military and civilian employee payrolls, contractors' fees, and supplies.

There is little that attracts headline attention in the Third Army today, but we are proud of our contribution which, together with the contributions of the five other Continental Armies, enables our two overseas counterparts, the Eighth Army in Korea and the Seventh Army in Europe, to operate as effective bulwarks against aggression and defend the freedoms which we have inherited.

May Boost Draft

military manpower input and outgo.

Said to be less enthusiastic about the plan is Assistant Secretary W. J. McNeil, Pentagon budget chief. It is obvious that any plan to raise draft calls this fiscal year will either (1) require supplemental funds, or (2) at least prevent the saving of upwards of $1,000,000,000 forecast as a result of the end of fighting in Korea.

In view of the directive from the President calling upon Government agencies to check fiscal '54 expenditures because of the debt ceiling limitation, Mr. McNeil's position is easily understood.

However, it is pointed out that if the additional money is not spent this year, it must be spent in fiscal '55 unless the decision is made to cut military manpower—particularly the Army—below fiscal '54 levels.

The reason that a decision must be made soon is obvious, for manpower levels play a primary role in formation of military budgets. Preliminary estimates for fiscal year 1955 will be made shortly at the Pentagon as the Joint Chiefs of Staff near completion of the initial phase of their overall look at defense requirements, including manpower needs.

There is no question that the JCS members, individually and as a group, would endorse any plan to stabilize manpower and prevent peaks and valleys. But whether the Defense Department will be willing to accept and endorse the budgetary implications remains to be seen.

"RIF" Army Officers

reduction-in-force.

The exact number who must be released involuntarily during the current fiscal year will depend on how many officers, Regulars and non-Regulars, take advantage of newly relaxed rules for leaving active duty or quitting the Service.

All together, the Army must lose about 10,000 officers, voluntarily or involuntarily by next 1 July.

Latest reports are that about 5000 have asked for accelerated release on a voluntary basis, but of this number some 2000 probably would have gone out anyway during fiscal year 1954. Hence, the net reduction is only about 3000 so far.

The Army has said that its greatest present overstrength is in company grade ranks. Consequently the largest percentage of officers to be separated involuntarily are expected to be lieutenants.

Some Army officials are concerned that the action may cause a shortage during the next year of combat-experienced company grade officers. The budgetary restrictions, however, permit no alternative but to force officers off active duty involuntarily as necessary.

There has been much talk during recent weeks that in light of the current unsettled world situation, notably with regard to the truce talks in Korea, the Army may be given authority to hold more men during the current fiscal year than originally approved by the Defense Department.

If this should prove the case, then fewer officers would have to be released.

The Army does not plan to send out reduction-in-force notices to officers in one or two batches. The notices are expected to be spread out over a number of months, although undoubtedly if the Army is told it can anticipate no fiscal '54 overall manpower overage, efforts will be made to cut back the officer corps as quickly as feasible to save money.

Per Diem Disallowed

In decision 115096, the Comptroller General rules, in relation to Military, Naval, and other personnel, that:

"A Naval Officer who was detached from his assigned duties and directed to proceed to a new station within the same metropolitan area as his official residence (home) for temporary duty in connection with separation processing, and who upon the completion of the processing was to proceed to his home for release from active duty, is not entitled to payment of per diem incident to the performance of the temporary duty."

Disability Retirement Pay

In calling attention to the authority of Disability Review Boards, the Comptroller General states, in decision B-114778, that:

"Section 302 of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended, which authorizes the establishment of boards of review 'to review at the request of any officer retired or released from active service, without pay, for physical disability pursuant to the decision of a retiring board, board of medical survey, or disposition board, the findings and decisions of such boards,' was not repealed or modified by Career Compensation Act of 1949, effective 1 Oct. 1949 and therefore, the benefits prescribed in section 302 continue to accrue to eligible officers even though their active service was terminated after 30 Sept. 1949."

You'll get special attention from Journal advisers—they cater to Service personnel.

Test New Interceptor

Testing of the Northrup F-89D Scorpion all-weather interceptor will begin soon at the AF Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Calif.

The radar-guided interceptor is powered by two Allison J-35 jet engines and is one of the most heavily armed aircraft of its type. It carries a total of 104 2.75-inch FFAR rockets in two permanent wing tip pods.

Tests at the flight center are designed to determine service and maintenance requirements for the aircraft under all weather conditions. From the findings of these experiments, the Air Force will determine stock levels of replacement parts, man hours and other requirements necessary to keep the craft operating under field conditions.

Obituaries

Gen. Jonathan M. Wainwright, USA-Ret.
General Jonathan M. Wainwright, USA-Ret., one of the great heroes of WWII, was buried in Arlington National Cemetery 8 Sept. after his body had lain in state in the Trophy Room at the cemetery, the first tribute of its kind since the Unknown Soldier of WWI.

The hero of Bataan and Corregidor died 2 Sept. at the age of 70. Doctors said his imprisonment by the Japanese had hastened his death.

Formal funeral services were held for the General in the Post Chapel at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., after thousands had filed past his bier during the two days his body had lain in state there. The body was then flown to Washington, D. C., for burial at Arlington.

Top military and civilian leaders attended the solemn and impressive military and Masonic rites as thousands of others looked on while the gaunt figure was committed to the soil.

General Wainwright was dressed in his uniform with campaign ribbons and decorations, including the Medal of Honor which former President Truman presented to him after WWII.

The ceremony was attended by the Joint Chiefs of Staff, many civilian military secretaries and Generals of the Army George C. Marshall and Omar N. Bradley. A few Bataan survivors were present, including Maj. Gen. E. P. King, who commanded the peninsula; Col. John R. Pugh, one of General Wainwright's staff officers and prison camp companions; Col. O. I. Holman and Maj. Gen. K. L. Berry, former combat associates who accompanied the body from San Antonio, and Col. Dennis M. Moore, a survivor of eight prison camps, who remains in active service.

General Wainwright's wife, ill in Colorado, was unable to attend, but his son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Jonathan M. Wainwright, 5th, USNR, were at the graveside.

The grave was beneath a tree just five feet from where the general's father, Maj. Robert Wainwright, was buried.

Honorary pallbearers at the funeral services in Texas were six retired generals who had known General Wainwright many years . . . General Walter Krueger, General Courtney Hodges, Lt. Gen. William Simpson, Lt. Gen. John Leonard, Lt. Gen. George Grunert and Lt. Gen. Herbert Bress.

Army Secretary's Tribute

When word of his death came, Secretary of the Army Robert T. Stevens issued the following statement:

"The name of General Jonathan M. Wainwright will remain alive in the pages of history. He has joined the great heroes of this nation he has served so well.

"It may be said literally that he sacrificed his life for his country, for his long suffering in Japanese prisoner of war camps contributed to and hastened his death.

"In over forty years of service with the Army, his integrity, his courage and his leadership exemplified the finest traditions of the military service and enriched them with his own steadfast courage.

"His distinguished career in the years before World War II gave early promise of greatness shown so vividly during the grim days of Bataan and Corregidor. The epic defense at Corregidor, under his courageous personal leadership, bought priceless time for America and was a major factor in frustrating the scheme of conquest of the enemy. In company with other great and distinguished soldiers, Jonathan Wainwright will continue to live in the hearts of his fellow Americans."

Pamela Wilson Warden

Hot AF Korea Group Aids Historical Foundation

Eighty-five Air Force officers of the Fourth Fighter-Interceptor Wing in Korea have mailed $850 in checks and money orders to the recently created Air Force Historical Foundation to become charter members of the organization, Maj. Gen. Robert W. Burns, Foundation Secretary, said this week.

In announcing the establishment of the organization, General Carl A. True H-Bomb Slated For Test, Says Writer

A prediction that the United States would test next year at Bikini "a fully developed hydrogen-bomb, the world's first true weapon of that type and the most powerful instrument ever created," was made this week.

Mr. Mark S. Watson, Baltimore Sun Military Correspondent, wrote in the 9 Sept. issue that "developments in technology within recent months have resulted in certain necessary improvements on the experimental hydrogen-bomb 'device' which the United States tested out at Eniwetok last November."

Widely recognized as one of the top writers on military affairs, Mr. Watson stated that an indication of the forthcoming tests is the designation of Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson, USA, as commander of new Joint Task Force 7. General Clarkson previously commanded Task Force 132 which directed the "Ivy" tests at Eniwetok last November, the Sun article recalled.

S/Sgt. Potter, Larson AFB, Wash., took first place in the Staff Car classification at the Denver Zone competitions held earlier this year.

Two other entries from Sewart AFB, Tenn., took first place positions in two separate vehicle classes at the Keesler Zone competitions held this year. S/Sgt. Seay won the Tandem Axle Semi-Trailer class and A/1c Terry won in the 29 Passenger Bus class.

A/1c Davis, Langley AFB, Va., will drive in the 29 Passenger Bus competition, the same class that he won first place in at the Wright-Patterson Zone competitions.

Beam Guidance Control Device Developed for AF

A major development in automatic flight for safer bad-weather approach and landings by military or commercial passenger planes, was revealed by Sperry Gyroscope Co. in a display at the National Air Show in Dayton, Ohio, last weekend. A working military system was shown, which was developed under contract to Armanent Laboratory, WADC, Air Research & Development Command.

The new device is identified as a Beam Guidance Control by the Air Force, but will be known as the Radio Beam Coupler in a simplified commercial version soon to follow priority production of the military type. Air Force interest in operational value of the new device is credited with speeding earlier tests and delivery of the Beam Guidance military prototypes, ahead of commercial availability for general aviation use.

The new beam coupler becomes a part of the modern high-performance automatic pilot, and introduces more effective usage of new VOR-omnirange beacons and other radio "tracks."

It automatically compensates for wind drift while riding omnirange or other beams. In fog, storms or darkness, when approaching airports on the localizer beam, the Sperry coupler detects intersection with the glide path, automatically shuts off altitude control, and transfers itself to glide slope control. It thus avoids former hazards of over-shooting the glide path, if a pilot fails to manually engage his glide control promptly enough at the intersection of the two invisible guiding beams.

McDonnell Annual Report

The McDonnell Aircraft Corporation disclosed recently that it had been awarded an Air Force pre-production contract for tooling and production engineering prior to the production of a new type photo-reconnaissance jet fighter, the RE-101A.

The information was contained in the firm's annual report for the 1953 fiscal year. This report listed a year-end backlog of $496,902,953, total sales of $133,531,447 and earnings after taxes of $4,234,301. All of these amounts were the highest in the history of the company.

The preliminary production order, which was awarded last March, was in addition to an Air Force production contract for an undisclosed number of F-101 Voodoo strategic twin-jet fighters which was received by the firm more than a year ago.

McDonnell is now working on two Navy jet fighter production contracts . . . the F2H-3 All-Weather Banshee and the F3H-1 Demon . . . In addition to its Air Force production work and additional production and experimental work on helicopters and guided missiles.

MSTS Summarizes August Activity

Ten tankers, one cargo ship and three ocean tows were chartered from American private ship operators during the month of August by the Military Sea Transportation Service.

The ten American clean tankers were chartered for single voyages beginning in October. Chartered rates ranged from 15 to 16 per cent below the basic U. S. Maritime Commission rates (applicable in the area of the voyage).

A privately-owned American Victory-type cargo ship was chartered for four months' use, with an option for four additional months.

Contracts were awarded to two American towing companies. Arrangements were made for the ocean tow of a crane from Charleston, S. C., to Leghorn, Italy, and for the tow of equipment from Newfoundland to Savannah, Ga.

During August, MSTS also initiated action to return 40 Government-owned General Agency Agreement cargo ships to the National Defense Reserve Fleet. This is in addition to ten ships for which action to redeliver was taken in July.

Operators of 17 American privately owned and operated ships were notified that their ships would be released from the MSTS service upon expiration of current charters.

At present, MSTS employs 157 cargo vessels and 33 tankers chartered from American-Flag shipping companies.

'FLYING MACHINE' PATENT

Attracting considerable attention at the National Aircraft Show at Dayton over Labor Day week-end was the original patent for "flying machines" issued by the U. S. Patent Office to Orville and Wilbur Wright on 22 May 1906.

Displayed in a frame atop a pedestal, the patent was brought to the show by Mr. Ronald S. Gall, manager of public relations for the Curtiss-Wright Corp., whose Wright Aeronautical Division is descended from the company formed by the Wright Brothers.

$28.6 Billion Obligated for Major Equipment in '53

The Department of Defense during fiscal 1953 obligated $28.6-billion for the procurement of major equipment and supplies, military construction and expansion of military production facilities.

Of this amount, the Army obligated $6.5-billion, the Navy $7.8 billion, and the Air Force $14.2-billion.

Obligations for procurement of "hard goods" such as aircraft, ships, tanks, weapons, ammunition, production equipment, electronics and similar equipment, amounted to $23.3-billion. For "soft goods," which includes clothing, subsistence and petroleum, $3-billion was obligated. Construction obligations totaled $2.3-billion. Procurement obligations for military assistance programs accounted for $2.1-billion of the $23.3-billion obligated for "hard goods."

Total Defense Department obligations, including military pay and allowances, research and development and other activities, as well as procurement and construction funds, were approximately $46.5-billion.

As of 30 June 1953, a total of $11.8-billion had not been obligated. Of this total, approximately $1.1-billion will be available for obligation in the present fiscal year, and the balance will expire.

NEW "T" TAIL on the Martin P5M-2, Navy anti-submarine seaplane. The long object projecting behind trailing edge houses electronic gear. The "T" type of tail requires less tail area and decreases both structural weight and aerodynamic drag. When the P5M-2 replaces the current model on the production line, the bow chine line will be lowered, reducing spray height. Also the advanced turbo Cyclone Wright-3350-32W engines with greater horsepower will be incorporated, giving the seaplane greater range and permitting heavier loads.

Lt. Col. Monroe 6th Army PIO

Two Famous Vessels Return to Active Fleet

Two well-known Navy vessels returned to active duty with the fleet this week as the submarine Angler and the carrier Hornet were recommissioned in separate ceremonies on the East Coast.

The Hornet, which carried the Doolittle flyers in their strike on Tokyo in the Spring of 1942, was recommissioned on 11 Sept., at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Her Commanding Officer is Capt. Milton A. Nation, USN.

The carrier, whose decks have been strengthened to handle heavier planes, was first launched in 1943 and participated in WWII Naval battles from Hollandia to the main islands of Japan. She was decommissioned in Sept. 1946.

Among those attending the ceremony was the Chief of Navy Chaplains, Rear Adm. Edward B. Harp, jr., who gave the launching prayer for the carrier in 1943 and who served aboard her during the war as Ships Chaplain. He offered the recommissioning prayer this week.

The Angler was placed in commission a day earlier at the yards of the Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics at Groton, Conn., after being converted to the anti-submarine Killer class. Lt. Comdr. Arthur W. Newlon, USN, received command of the vessel from Capt. John E. Lee, Commanding Officer of the Submarine Base at New London, Conn.

A WWII fleet-type submarine, the Angler took part in some of the most important battles of the war and sank at least three large enemy vessels. She also engaged in outstanding rescue missions.

The submarine was turned over to the Navy on behalf of Electric Boat by Stephen A. Gardner, Assistant Secretary-Treasurer and Plant Engineer.

Valley Forge P.M.S.&T.

Milton G. Baker, Superintendent of the Academy. Colonel Peters succeeds Col. Charles F. McNair, Arty., who has been transferred for reassignment in Europe following the close of his three-year tour of duty at Valley Forge.

Colonel Peters, a veteran of 22 years' service in the Regular Army, comes to the Academy from duty with the General Headquarters of the Far East Command where he served as Plans and Training Officer in Japan. Appointed to the United States Military Academy from New York in 1927, he was graduated in 1931.

Army Temporary Promotions

Although it had been hoped details would be available this week, Army officials said that last minute details have held up an official statement on zones of consideration for forthcoming temporary promotions to captain, major and lieutenant colonel.

Barring additional complications, however, this information is likely to become known next week. Unofficial reports are that the zones of consideration will be "substantial."

First boards probably will meet in October and some promotions may be made late next month.

From 1950 to 1951, Colonel Willette served in Korea, first as a regimental commander in the 7th Division, then as Chief, Corps Troops Section, X Corps, and finally as Inspector General of the 8th Army. Upon his return to the United States he was assigned to Camp Drum.

Wave Integration Program Bogs Down

The Navy's integration program for Wave officers, THE JOURNAL learned this week, has slowed almost to a halt in the junior ranks of the Line, resulting in a problem which is the cause for concern within the Navy.

Disclosure of this development in the Wave program came shortly after the Bureau of Naval Personnel announced that no selection board will be convened during fiscal '54 for the promotion of Wave lieutenant commanders. This action, as previously reported, marks the third time in five years that the Navy has stalled Wave selections to commander.

Observers said lowered morale among Wave officers—reportedly arising from their inability to understand promotion policies set for women by the Bureau of Naval Personnel—is causing the stalemate within the Wave integration program.

They noted that Capt. Joy Bright Hancock, former Director of the Waves, sounded the gravity of the problem shortly before her retirement this Summer.

In a directive dated last May, and not previously made public, Captain Hancock noted that the number of Regular women Line officers below the rank of lieutenant had decreased throughout fiscal 1953. She urged Wave leaders to do their "utmost" to bring the Navy's integration program to the attention of junior officers and to get them to "weigh seriously" the advantages of requesting transfers to the Regular Navy.

Captain Hancock said, "I cannot emphasize too strongly how important I consider this program to the future career status and promotional opportunity for women of all grades, particularly the higher ones."

She said this matter and another problem affecting the Waves appeared "to be of sufficient importance to warrant a special message" to the Wave leaders prior to her retirement.

At present the Navy has no Regular Wave officers serving in the rank of ensign although it has 228 active Reserve Wave ensigns who are now eligible or shortly will be eligible for integration.

Waves think that the obstacles which the integration program has encountered are due in large part to a general belief among the women that their promotion opportunities within the Regular Wave Line ranks are limited. This belief has been fostered, they state, because the Navy in the past five years has named only six Regular Wave Line officers for promotion to commander.

The Bureau of Naval Personnel has stated, however, that the present policy of no promotions in the high rank is necessary in order to provide an eventual promotion pattern for women which will be to their advantage.

Due to these conflicting views, THE JOURNAL has posed a series of questions for BuPers officials and will print the answers in subsequent issues in an attempt to clarify the situation for our Wave readers.

General Deitrick did not disclose the number of trucks involved in either case.

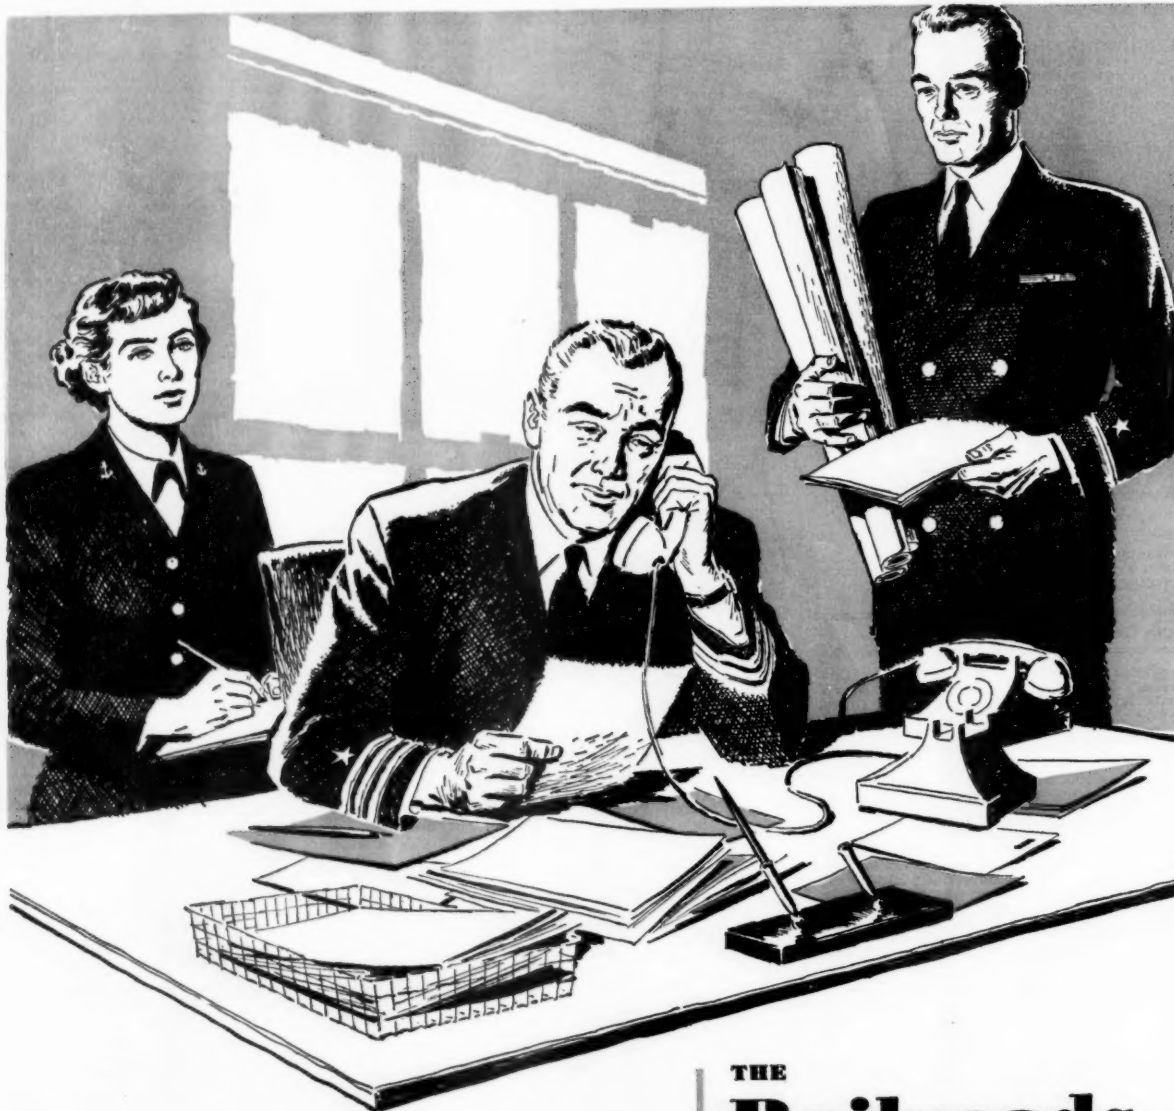

Previously announced stretchouts affected 2½ ton and 5 ton trucks and medium and light tanks.
